

StormPro Max...

Ensource BSI...

Together We Are Better

The Future, Today!

StormPro Max and Ensource BSI. Utilizing StormPro's state-of-the-art software, Ensource is blending it with their current consulting services to bring you the best of both worlds.

Two paths, one road. Ensource began by writing a software program for the construction industry to track all of their compliance. Over time, customers requested that Ensource provide consulting services. So, Ensource combined their software with consulting services to bring you Complete Compliance™. StormPro founder TJ Cannamela started by providing quality consulting and erosion control services and developed one of the best software packages along the way. Now, Ensource is utilizing StormPro's software so that Ensource can focus on consulting services instead of software development. When two powerhouses work together everyone wins.

The Ensource Story: "When we were evaluating the industry we recognized the value of StormPro's software and team. They had many of the same features of our CALM™ software, plus some other features that we were both in the process of developing," says Ensource co-founder Ryan Jones. "We realized that the two of us were the leaders in the industry when it came to compliance software. So, we approached StormPro and suggested we cease the development of our software and license the use of their software. Together, we really can serve people better. It has been an easy transition for us because our people are technologically savvy and used to using our own software."

The StormPro Story: "When we talked to Ensource, we saw that our visions were very similar from a technology standpoint. It was a natural fit for them to become one of our customers," says TJ at StormPro. "We may be two separate companies, but I believe we compliment each other quite well. We are able to provide them quality software and they can focus on their core business. We are excited to have them as a client."

The end result. More resources to serve you. While StormPro will continue to develop, support, and sell their StormPro software, Ensource is implementing the StormPro system to their existing customers and promote StormPro in the industry. The features you came to appreciate with CALM™ are still there, plus more...

Wonder when and if a correction happened? Find out from any computer – day or evening.

Wasting time with administrative tasks? Subcontractors may update the status of corrective actions on our system, letting you know the exact date and time they occur.

Do different MS4s require additional documentation for inspections? Never have to worry again about which form to use. We can easily assign different forms to different projects.

Wasting time altering maps manually? Now revise maps digitally in the field.

Never worry about losing documents again. Just like with the inspections, if you need copies or lose documents, simply reprint and replace them.

By combining software with site inspections, Ensource delivers to you qualified inspections that will minimize your liability, reduce your costs, and save you time managing the process. Because StormPro has the premium software in the market today, you are able to see your compliance in real-time as we manage your sites for you.

We help you manage your compliance needs, bring your contractors together for cooperative, closed-loop communication and reduce your time, cost, and liability. We call this Complete Compliance™.

Give Ensource a call. Let us show you the next generation in service.
